HEAVY DEMAND FOR ALASKA ROAD BOOKLETS

New Alaska highway booklets issued by the Alberta Motor Association are in great demand according to officials of that organization.

In the first edition 20,000 copies were printed and some offices report supplies are exhausted. It appears that an additional number will be required.

Offices of travel bureaus and other agencies in the U.S. and in parts of Western Canada have reported an increased demand for these informative booklets giving up to date information on regulations dealing with traffic on the 1,500 mile Alaska highway from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska.

While the highway has not been opened to general tourist travel and that appears unlikely this year, applications for travel permits are being received by the R.C.M.P. in Edmonton in an increased number. If it is found that the application can be approved and the car is road worthy, the driver is allowed to proceed north.

The main reason for these restrictions is that there are an insufficient number of service stations and sleep lag accommodations as yet to take care of any large motor tourist movement.

CHECK BEING MADE ON U.S. CURRENCY

OTTAWA, August 6th.—At the request of the Foreign Exchange Control Board, the R.C.M.P. have commenced a country-wide check of the way in which storekeepers, service stations, hotels and others are handling U.S. currency received from tourists.

The U.S. dollar expenditures of tourists in Canada are one of the main sources of the foreign exchange needed to pay for Canadian imports and other normal expenditures in the United States. So that the U.S. dollars spent by tourists will be available for these purposes, the Foreign Exchange Control Regulations require that Canadian merchants and others turn the U.S. currency they receive into their banks.

Officials of the Board said that reports they have received indicate that many merchants are not turning in their U.S. dollar receipts but are paying them out freely in change, and in some cases are selling them to members of the public in exchange for Canadian money. This has led to the check-up now being made and where breaches of the regulations are found, prosecutions under the Foreign Exchange Control Act will be commenced.

Under the Regulations a merchant hotel-keeper or other person engaged in a business serving tourists may accept U.S. currency at par and may make change in U.S. currency for a non-resident tourist who tenders U.S. currency in payment for purchases. For this purpose a merchant may keep on hand a reasonable amount of U.S. currency but, with this one exception, is required to turn in this bank all U.S. currency he receives.

In no circumstances is a merchant hotel-keeper etc. entitled under the Regulations to pay out U.S. currency in exchange for Canadian currency or in change to a Canadian resident even though the latter may have tendered U.S. currency in payment for a purchase.

LONE SHIELING UNVEILED

Chief Flora, the McLeod of McLeod from the Isle of Skye in Scotland, unveiled the "Lone Shieling" on July 29 in Cape Breton Highlands National Park, Nova Scotia, and Hon. A. I. MacDonald, Premier of Nova Scotia delivered the principal address.

Among the distinguished guests present were John M. Campbell, M.L.A., M.H. MacKinnon, M.L.A., John MacIntosh, and members of the MacIntosh family.

"Lone Shieling" patterned after the style of a Scottish shieling or bothan, (a shepherds hut or shelter dwelling) may still be found in parts of the Scottish Highlands and adjacent islands.

The idea of the "Lone Shieling" had its beginning in the will of Professor MacIntosh, of Dalhousie University, who bequeathed to the Provincial government of Nova Scotia an area of approximately 100 acres adjacent to the Cabot Trail in the vicinity of Pleasant Bay. The will stipulated that if the area should be included in the proposed national park a "Lone Shieling" should be erected on the property.

When Cape Breton Highlands National Park was established in 1936 the area bequeathed by the Professor was included, and his wish to have a "Lone Shieling" erected thereon has thus been carried out.

A Benefit To Agriculture

THE WORK OF THE United Nations Organization is overshadowed a great deal of the time by spectacular news from all over the world, but although it does not always occupy public attention it is interesting to know that work is going steadily forward to accomplish the purposes laid down when the organization was formed. Of particular interest to the people here is the activity of the Food and Agriculture Organization since much of its work is connected with the improvement of methods of farming, the more efficient distribution of agricultural products and other related matters. Of wide interest to people in the West was the recent appointment of Dr. L. E. Kirk, dean of agriculture at the University of Saskatchewan, as head of the plant industry branch of the agricultural division of the F.A.O.

Hopes To Raise Living Levels

The main objective of the Food and Agriculture Organization is to raise the standard of living in countries where the population lives for the most part at starvation level, and to help them to improve and increase their food production. One of the problems to be dealt with under Dr. Kirk's direction will be concerned with the preservation and storage of food. It is estimated that over one-half of the food which is put on the market is lost because of poor storage facilities. If this loss could be overcome it would be a big factor in increasing the world food supply. Dr. Kirk will also deal with problems of pests and insect plagues, such as grasshoppers, which may attack crops to the extent of seriously affecting the production of important foods.

Will Attempt Pest Control

Another important branch of Dr. Kirk's work will be concerned with the creation of a central source which will give out information concerning valuable genetic stocks of animals and plants throughout the world. Means will also be sought of ensuring that such stock will be preserved and be always available to farmers of any country associated in the U.N.O. In carrying out such work Dr. Kirk will be performing a valuable service to agriculture throughout the world, and it is gratifying to know that an official of one of our Western Canadian universities was selected for this important position.

How To Remove FRUIT STAINS

Summer fruits bring enjoyment but they also bring worries if we have the misfortune of getting their juices on our clothes—and most of us do at some time or other.

However it is comforting to know that most fruit stains may be removed when they are fresh by pouring boiling water over them. However there are exceptions to this, as to most rules.

The exceptions are fresh peach, pear, cherry or plum stains which contain enough tannin to be darkened and set by heat. On stains made by these four fruits use cool water and glycerine or a soapless shampoo. (Never use soap because it sets the stain.) First, sponge the stain with cool water. Then work a little glycerine or soapless shampoo into the stain rubbing lightly between the hands. Let stand several hours, then apply a few drops of vinegar and allow to remain a minute or two before rinsing thoroughly with water.

This same method is recommended for fruit stains on wool or silk. On these fabrics boiling water should never be used, because it may injure the fabric.

Cool water and glycerine are also recommended for stains made by tomato juice and catsup.

British Total Army Strength At 108,000

LONDON.—Britain's regular army has increased by 9,000 men since last December, John Freeman, financial secretary to the War Office, told the House of Commons.

Voluntary recruitment had been at a rate of about 3,600 in April and 3,400 in May. Total strength now is 108,000, he said.

CASHIER REFUSED TO BELIEVE BANDIT

SANTA MONICA, Cal.—"This is a holdup," said a gruff voice outside the movie ticket window. "Are you kidding?" laughed Wanda June Phillips, the cashier in front of the gun's muzzle. "Move on, you're holding up the line."

The would-be bandit fled, but the next man in line pursued, coiled him and called the police.

We still think the prize comment about the power of atomic energy goes to the wide-eyed girl who exclaimed: "Gee they ought to be careful what they do with that stuff. It's dynamite!"

The prodigal son had returned. "Father," he inquired, "are you going to kill the fatted calf?" "No," answered the old man, looking the youth over carefully. "No, I'll let you live. But I'll put you to work and train a lot of that fat off."

"Sure, the list price of the dinner is $2," said the waiter blandly to the new-car salesman, "but the flowers on the table bring it to $3.75."

A woman was shopping for Father's Day. She thought shaving soap would be nice, and mentioned it to a clerk. "Do you want it for a mug?" he asked. "Well, yes," she answered, "but I never refer to him in that way."

Gloria: "Was your uncle's mind vigorous and sane to the last?" Harold: "I don't know. The will won't be read until tomorrow."

"Here, Auntie," said the returned soldier, "is a franc I brought you from Paris as a souvenir."

"Thank you," said the dear old lady, "but I wish you would have brought me one of those Latin quarters I read so much about."

Government Examiner — "How did you come to mark this man's paper 101 per cent? Don't you know that nothing can be more perfect than 100 per cent?"

New Assistant—"Yes, but this man answered one question we didn't ask."

Voice from rear seat of taxi—"I say, driver, what's the idea of stopping?" Driver—"I thought I heard somebody tell me to stop." Rear Seat—"Drive on, buddy! She wasn't talking to you."

The Mrs.: "Mary, we have breakfast promptly at 8 o'clock." New maid: "All right, mum, but if I ain't down don't wait for me."

Willie: "Can't you give me another name, mother?" Mother: "Why?"

"My teacher is always saying she will keep me after school as sure as my name is Willie."

"So you met your wife at a dance; wasn't that romantic?" "No, it was embarrassing. I thought she was home minding the kids!"

The priest called on an elderly Irish woman. "And how are you today, Bridget?" asked he.

"I'm bad enough, father," she replied. "I've the pain in the arm and the pain in the legs. And I've only two teeth in the whole of me head; but, thanks to God, they're opposite."

"And now, children," said the teacher, "who can give me the plural of forget-me-not?" "I can," said Johnny. "It's forget-us-not."

Hotel bell boy: "Telegram for Mr. Neldspondlavanel! Mr. Neldspondlavanel! Telegram for Mr. Neldspondlavanel!"

Man sitting in the lobby: "What is the initials, please?"

The Danger Of Lightning

Golfing, Swimming and Seeking Shelter Under Trees During Storms Should Be Avoided

A golf caddy was recently killed by lightning because his group of enthusiasts insisted on playing during a thunderstorm. This is an example of the silly things people do which add to the death toll from lightning.

Nine out of 10 fatalities from lightning occur in rural areas, according to a survey of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. City dwellers are relatively safe, partly because the steel structures of tall buildings act as lightning conductors.

People in the country are more likely to be caught some distance from a safe shelter and are more likely to be targets for the electrical discharge, particularly if they are on a broad field. Safest place in rural areas during a storm is a building well equipped with lightning rods.

The metal bodies of automobiles protect the occupants, even if the car is struck by lightning. Many city people spend the summer in the country, which is the worst season for storm victims, and consequently should take the precautions which rural residents have to keep in mind all year round.

Many lives are lost because of dangerous actions of persons caught in thunderstorms. Trees, particularly isolated ones, because of their height, are more likely to be struck than persons. That is why a good many are killed or badly injured when they seek shelter under a lone tree.

The practice of taking refuge in small sheds, especially in exposed areas, is dangerous. These structures are a more likely target than individuals out in the open. Ironically enough a number of those killed were standing under trees or sheltered in sheds, close to their own homes. A short walk in the rain to get home would have saved their lives.

New Canadian-Invented Radar Device Best In World

OTTAWA.—Canada's national research council has developed a radar distance-reading meter which "very convincingly outperformed foreign devices in open competition," it was disclosed in the NRC report tabled in the Commons.

The mechanism allows an aircraft or marine pilot to read off his distance in miles from a pre-determined ground point. Previously, radar operators had to compute their distance from various information given by the radar equipment. The new meter gives the mileage directly.

May Pay Back Compulsory Savings By 1949

OTTAWA.—Canadian taxpayers who have been looking forward to getting back from the Government $261,000,000 worth of wartime "compulsory savings", may get their money sooner than they expected—in two years instead of three.

As it stands, the Government owes the following amounts.

$261,000,000 to personal income taxpayers.

$259,196,000 to excess profits taxpayers.

Hon. Douglas Abbott, Minister of Finance, during discussion of his departmental estimates in the House of Commons, said he would make no promises, but he could see advantages in paying back all that was owed in two payments instead of three, as was originally provided for. This would mean that the debt would be paid by 1949 instead of 1950.

The Government, he said, would consider this idea.

For personal income taxpayers, the money they have owing to them ranges from less than one dollar to several hundred dollars, and the present plan is that the first instalment, amounting to $58,000,000 will be paid back by cheque before March 31, 1948.

The second payment, amounting to $135,000,000, is due before March 31, 1949, and the third payment of $72,000,000 must be paid before March 31, 1950.

These three payments will be for "compulsory savings" chargeable to 1942, 1943, and 1944, which was the last year that this enforced savings system was in effect.

One of the main administrative problems, Mr. Abbott said, was that in the first planned repayment alone there were some 15,000 cheques for amounts of less than one dollar.

WHITE EMPRESSES BACK — The final port will be Saint John, N.B. When the passenger liner Empress of Canada sailed under Jacques Cartier Bridge spanning the St. Lawrence at Montreal on July 23, regular passenger service between Canada and the United Kingdom, which has been a thing of the past since 1940, was resumed by the Canadian Pacific. URGE MEMBERS SHOW THEIR A.M.A. EMBLEMS

An appeal to members to display A.M.A. emblems on their cars is being made by officials of the Alberta Motor Association. It appears that a large number do not show these emblems on their windshields.

With U.S. tourists pouring into the province in a record flood, there is a great opportunity for A.M.A. members to be of service in welcoming these newcomers.

When the driver of a U.S. car recognizes an A.M.A. members car he will have an opportunity of obtaining any needed data concerning the route being travelled or other essential information.

There are many questions these strangers may wish to ask while on their way and naturally they will be disposed whenever possible to seek this from members of an association affiliated with their own American Automobile Association.

There are more than 25000 members of the A.M.A. With such a membership there should be a much larger number of cars displaying the emblem of this organization. This is the season to get busy if that has not been done already.

Health LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

UNDULANT FEVER SAID THREAT TO HEALTH OF U.S.

Brucellosis, more commonly known as undulant fever or Malta fever, is a source of potential danger to the United States national health, it was stated in an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association recently. This infection is harbored by goats, cows and hogs, and humans contract it by drinking raw (unpasteurized) milk or handling infectious material.

The editorial estimated that "the total number of cases reported in the United States has averaged about 4,000 yearly for the past several years," but added that as only the relatively severe acute illnesses are diagnosed and reported, it is probable that actually 40,000 to 100,000 infections occur annually. It was pointed out that chronic infections are rarely diagnosed.

Applying this ratio to Canada, it would appear that probably 19,000 to 50,000 infections occur annually in the Dominion. Figures for the years 1930 to 1945, inclusive, reveal a total of 1,124 cases reported for an average annual rate of 187 cases. However, in 1940 there were only 142 cases while in 1945 there were 264.

From this it would appear that, comparatively, undulant fever in Canada is not the public health problem it is in the United States. However, the disease and its crippling and killing possibilities are with us—and will be with us as long as it appears difficult to prevent, diagnose and apply treatment.

The Journal editorial concludes that "development of still better methods in diagnosis, treatment and prevention in animals and men, depends upon an increasing 'brucellosis-mindedness' and continued investigation. The disease continues to be a major public health problem. Pasteurization of all dairy products must remain the greatest bulwark against human infection until methods of control can be perfected."

Thus it can be seen that as far as dairy products are concerned, pasteurization is the only sure guard against undulant fever. Likewise, pasteurization is a sure guard against other milk-borne diseases such as bovine tuberculosis, typhoid fever, septic sore throat, paratyphoid and dysentery.

Incidentally, the Journal editorial remarks that the annual food loss in milk, butter, beef, veal and pork from brucellosis reaches a staggering total in calories of the kind most needed by an underfed world.

ONLY TEN IN CANADA

It is estimated that in the world today there are 3,000,000 lepers. Of these, unfortunately, only 10 are known to live in Canada. Of these 10, the Dominion keeps three in British Columbia—at a cost of $11,000 this year—and seven in New Brunswick, where there is a century-old leper station.

Investigate Death Of Stowaway

Charged by the captain of the Maria G. with aiding a stowaway, later found dead, Bernard Mountain of Saint John, N.E., is confined to his bunk by injury suffered at sea. The ship sailed from Saint John some months ago and now is in Montreal harbor after a voyage to China, Honolulu and India. Quebec provincial police boarded her to investigate the suspected murder.

Body of the unidentified stowaway was found on the Maria G. last April and was buried at sea, off India. The dead man was found in a utility locker with tins of food and biscuits nearby.

GENERAL WOOD, WORLD'S GREATEST STOREKEEPER, IS SURE OF PRICES DROPPING

WASHINGTON.—Into the senate strode the world's greatest storekeeper in a Sears, Roebuck and company, $22.50 summer suit of tan cotton. His coat was rumpled and threadbare around the collar from repeated washings; with it he wore a speckled necktie from Sear's 89 cent rack. When you're the biggest retailer of all you're expecting to do two billion dollars worth of business this year, you don't have to look like any fashion plate.

So Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck and company, sat at ease in his well-worn hibernian before the congressional joint economic committee. He said among other things that prices are on the way down and that no depression is in sight. He mentioned radios as one of the things which already have dropped drastically in price.

Well then, demanded one of the congressmen, what about the martel radios that cost $10 before the war and $30 now? That question did not embarrass the general.

Yep, he said, he was strolling through one of his own stores last fall, looking over the stock of midget radios priced at $30.

"They weren't worth $30, either," he added, "or anywhere near it. Today the price of those same radios is $20."

The congressmen said that still seemed too high; the general still was not embarrassed.

"Of course it is," he said, "and in about three months more that same radio will sell for $15."

He said he believed congress could leave it to the people to bring down prices; the customers simply don't buy when costs are too high. "Yes, because they've run out of money," snapped Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyo.

"Not at all," replied Gen. Wood, crossing his knees and displaying his scuffed, $4.95 Sears, Roebuck shoes. "This thing all started last fall when rich women refused to pay $5,000 for fur coats."

He said they'd only pay $2,000. Prices of all coats fell, cloth ones included. Then the bargain sale spread to dresses, jewelry and high grade cosmetics.

"And soon there wasn't any demand for costume jewelry at all," he said. "And that's the way it goes."

Fingering the collar of his $2.95 Sears, Roebuck shirt Gen. Wood said, textiles also were too high and that eventually the price would break.

Anyhow, he said, he wasn't much worried about the future. The business prophets have been wrong on every count since the end of the war and he ignores them.

THE WORLD'S LANGUAGES

Almost 3,500 languages and dialects are spoken in the world. There are 100 separate modes of speech in Africa, 130 in India, 87 in the Philippine Islands, 46 in Europe, and as is frequently stated, "42 languages are heard in the streets of Jerusalem."

The growth of the English language is remarkable. It is the language of 250,000,000 persons, and a further 6,000,000 are able to use it sufficiently for business purposes.

MY WEEK

by R. J. Deschman

I have been on holidays for two weeks. Even an inert machine can't keep on working indefinitely—It needs rest. In this new era or should I say in this great spending time, holidays are costly. There is always a way out I have noticed lately in American papers a few nice hotel rooms offered at $15 per day, per person. Cheer up! You can probably get as good a holiday in a cabin at a third of that cost. With meals included I am glad that in this country of our there are many common things which cost little. There are mountains and rivers and the open country. There are people too, without much money just as interesting as those with longer purses. Not all the virtues rest with the poor but poverty does not measure the wisdom of a man's mind nor his kindness of heart.

Try as he will it seems extremely difficult for the farmer to take holidays. His position is different. The farmer does not work steadily from morning until night the year round. He works hard when he is working but there are times when he can afford to idle a bit. Holidays mean an absence from the normal occupation and in that sense he too has his holidays—and the car gives him a freedom unknown to the pioneers of other days, he can make good use of it.

Lincoln's papers dealing with a record of his life from his early life to the tragic day which marked his end are now available for the study of his life and times. They represent 18,350 documents, copies of letters and important papers, memoranda of events which happened, fragments which show the inner life of that great man.

What gives this strange fascination to the life story of Abraham Lincoln? He had an extraordinary mind. The things he said and did had a tremendous appeal. He was simple, direct, elemental in his approach to the problems of life. He lacked the education which usually goes with the man who reaches the highest position in the realm but this seemed no barrier. Up to the age of 21 his reading had been confined largely to the Bible, Robinson Crusoe, Aesop's Fables and the Plays of Shakespeare, but limited opportunity seemed to have exercised no restraint upon his greatness. Think over the great men of the past. Is there one in all those you would like better to have known—that is a test of worth—there can be no better test.

One simple extract from his farewell address when leaving Springfield Ill., on February 11, 1861 to undertake his great task shows the kindness of his heart, the simplicity of his nature.

"No one, not in my situation, can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place and the kindness of these people, I owe everything. Here I have lived a quarter of a century, and have passed from a young to an old man. Here my children have been born, and one is buried. I now leave, not knowing when or whether ever, I may return, with a task before me greater than that which rested upon Washington. Without the assistance of that Divine Being, who ever attended him, I cannot succeed. Trusting in Him who can go with me, and remain with you and be everywhere for good, let us confidently hope that all will yet be well—to his care commending you, as I hope in your prayers you will commend me, I bid you an affectionate farewell."

Time will not efface the memory of this man, he belongs to the immortals.

meeting at Montreux, Switzerland.

It represents business in its broadest sense. There were representatives of twenty-seven of the leading nations in the world present at that conference.

Here is one outstanding fact. All but two of these countries have, in the past, drifted to some extent into forms of controlled production whether under government aegis or through cartelization under government approval. These two countries are Canada and the United States. They have today the highest standard of living of any countries in the world.

lons. It may be that they have been prosperous because they have not modified to any great extent their methods of production. It may go further than that. It may be because they have not done this and have retained the competitive system their capacity to produce has remained unhampered and so their standard of living is higher than it otherwise would be, higher than it now is in any other country of the world.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

GOOD COMPANY

By GEORGE GRAHAM

"WELL, Joe, I'm going on my vacation next week, and I want you boys to stay in your good behavior while I'm away," said Sergeant Stevens with a good natured grin. He was a large, heavy set, genial man, head of the guards at the County Prison. All of the prisoners liked and respected Sergeant Stevens, for he was lenient and honest with them. He trusted them and treated them well, but was serious and completely conscientious about his job.

"Have a good time, sarge," said Joe Walsh, a trusty with six months time standing between himself and freedom. "What are you going to do with yourself?"

"I think I'll take a motor trip around the state," Sergeant Stevens said. "Like to see more of the country, after being cooped up here with the rest of you boys all year."

"Sounds like a great idea," Joe said.

"Yeh!" answered the sergeant with a sad smile. "I'm only sorry I can't take you and some of the boys along. You make good company. Oh, well! Next year you should be out. Maybe we'll get together then."

"Sure, Sarge," Joe murmured. "Enjoy yourself."

When the sergeant let himself out of the cell block, Joe sat thinking, ignoring the other prisoners. He had never thought of escaping the prison while Sergeant Stevens was in charge and responsible for the men, but now Joe began to yearn for his freedom.

Three days after the sergeant left on vacation, Joe was assigned to the bean picking crew at the prison farm. That afternoon, while the guards made their rounds lazily in the hot sun, he climbed the fence and cut quickly through the woods. At the first town he passed, some quick thinking and acting rewarded him with a denim shirt, overalls, a threadbare overcoat and a penk cap which had been hanging on the clothes line of one of the housewives.

After a change he looked like one of the farmers or workmen. He breathed deeply of the warm breeze, as he walked down the side streets of the town, feeling free once again. That evening he crawled into an empty coal car on a north-bound freight. As he watched the scenery flow swiftly by the open door and felt the wind in his face he sang a happy song. In a few days he would be several states away from the County Prison. While humming softly to himself, he fell asleep, lulled by the jolting rhythm of the wheels on the tracks.

"Hey you, hobo. C'mon, wake up." A voice, harsh and hard, grated in Joe's ears. A heavy foot tapping his shoulder awakened him more completely. He sat up slowly, blinked and yawned, and saw that the sun was shining brightly in the door of the freight car. The train had stopped on a siding, and outside was a pasture overgrown with weeds.

"What's the matter," Joe asked, trying to collect his senses. He looked up at the large man and noticed the holstered gun on his hip.

"I'm a railroad detective," the man said. "Get up. I'm going to take you down to the hoosegow. You know you're not allowed to ride the freights."

Joe's nerves jumped with nervous jitters, and he fought to keep his teeth from rattling. By now they would have heard of his escape at the local jail.

He pleaded with the detective in his most heart melting voice, begging to be given another chance, swearing he didn't know that he wasn't allowed to ride on the freight trains.

The detective tapped his gun significantly. "I hear that same story from every hobo we pick up," he said. "Now come along without any trouble."

Joe wearily stretched and stood up, while pictures of returning to the jail cell flowed through his mind. Each time he thought of the confinement, he added fresh and convincing pleas to those already submitted to the detective.

When he had given up all hope and made up his mind that he was hopelessly headed back to County Prison, the man softened. "I guess you're having a pretty hard time of it, travelling around the country this way. I'll let you off this time, but after this stay away from the trains."

"Gosh! Thanks, mister," said Joe gratefully, almost crying with relief. "You don't know how much this means to me. I'll stick to the highway after this." He heaved a deep, heartfelt sigh, and almost ran the short distance to the highway for fear that the detective might change his mind.

The walk made him hungry, and as he realized how long it had been since his last meal he almost wished he was back at the prison, where the boys would be eating breakfast. "Oh well!" he thought, "Pretty soon I'll be far enough away that I can stop and find some food." His thumb flipped at the passing cars, and finally a sedan slowed down and pulled to the side of the road.

Joe opened the door quickly. "Going my way," he asked and relaxed in the comfortable seat. "Sure, always glad to have good company," said the driver in a voice that seemed familiar to Joe.

"Thanks a lot," Joe said, but as he looked at the man, the smile faded suddenly from his face. He gulped and added sheepishly, "...Sarge!"

CITY AND FARM PEOPLE

Gap In Understanding

"What are you going to do this summer?" a retired farmer friend of ours asked the high school son of a friend of his, as he grasped the arm of a fine husky boy of 17.

"Well, I hoped to be a caddy at Jasper, but nothing doing. The trouble is I'm not 18 so I am trying to get a job in a broker's office."

"Why a broker's office? Why don't you take that good muscle to a farm and make it even better, and at the same time help the farmer to produce food?" our friend asked.

"Well, Mom and Dad are afraid I wouldn't be properly fed and housed on a farm."

What ignorance! The good farm homes of Canada excel the best city homes in the quality of the food and in the excellence of the personal care given the household. Canadian city parents who do not know that their sons would be improved vastly, physically and mentally, by a summer of outdoor work, fresh, superlatively-cooked foods, and sound sleep, are not aware of how best to complete the education of their children.

The greatest lack in the development of Canadian youth is the simple discipline of work with nature. Any Canadian city family that does not know personally a half-dozen fine farm families, in whose homes the food and personal care is equal to or better than in their own, should get out in the country and get acquainted. The growing gap in understanding between the farm and city people of Canada is the basic cause of the economic inequities which are resulting in an abnormal reduction in farm population, and the less-than-potential production of food in a world which food alone can save. — The Scene, From Shingwauk Farm.

Businessmen Discount Fears Of Depression

WASHINGTON. — Two United States business leaders discounted fears of a new inflationary spree, and told Congress that Americans have reason to look to the future with confidence.

Here is what they testified before the joint congressional committee on the economic report:

1. George M. Humphrey, Pittsburgh, head of the world's largest commercial coal company who helped negotiate the new contract with John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers:

"The new coal wage contract will do more to stabilize the economy and retard inflation than settlement of any controversy in the industry in several years." He said he thinks it will not affect wages in other industries.

2. Earl Bunting, president of the National Association of Manufacturers:

"Prices are high, as compared to pre-war, but the increase has been less than the rise of wages during the last four months. The price level has definitely flattened out."

A third witness, Robert E. Wood, board chairman of Sears, Roebuck and Co., added this assuring view of the economic outlook:

"I have never believed that any depression was in store for us in 1947 and I doubt whether it will come in 1948."

Wood said the United States should stop most of its assistance to Europe "because Western Europe is to a large extent finished." He said no amount of money can restore its economy to its former condition.

CARE OF SHOES

Don't store leather shoes or leather or rubber overshoes in a hot attic, as heat will rot rubber and weaken leather. Put them in a cool, dry place, and clean them thoroughly before storing. Mud left on shoes will make a permanent stain on the leather.

Add 1 envelope Royal Fast Rising Dry Yeast and 1 tsp. sugar to 1 c. lukewarm water. Stir; let stand 10 min. Scald 1 c. milk, add 5 tbs. sugar; add 2 tsp. salt, cool to lukewarm. Add to yeast mixture. Add 3 c. sifted flour, beat until perfectly smooth. Add 4 tbs. melted shortening and 3 c. more sifted flour, or enough to make easily handled dough. Knead well. Place in greased bowl. Cover; let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 1½ hours. Punch dough down in bowl; let rise again in warm place until nearly doubled in bulk, about 40 min. When light, roll out ¼" thick. Brush over lightly with melted shortening. Cut with 2" biscuit cutter, crease through center heavily with dull edge of knife, fold over in pocketbook shape. Place on well-greased shallow pans 1" apart. Cover; let rise until light, about 1 hour. Bake in 400°F. oven about 15 minutes.

Smart Idea!

ROMANCE, Sask.—When her chickens break out of their wire enclosure to invade the neighbors' gardens, Mrs. George Pitka, Romance postmistress, does not dash out after them but standing on the back porch of her home she lets go with a few eerie hawk cries. The gullible chickens come home on the double.

Beware of letting acid foods, such as tomatoes, lemons and vinegar, touch the porcelain enamel on the outside of your range or refrigerator unless the finish is acid-resistant. These foods will leave a stain that won't come off.
